

Foreword

Looking through the telescope, one sees
"The Coahoma Galaxy" studded with a brilliant array of illustrious educators, skillful artisans, conscientious workers, commodious buildings and loyal students.

Look carefully as you peer into THE 1960 COAHOMAN in order that you may see the hundreds of stars merging into one luminous band across "The Coahoma Sky."

Coahoman Staff

Congratulations to the annual staff of the Coahoman. You are doing a job for Coahoma Junior College And Agricultural High School which reflects credit on the entire institution.

Since this is our only annual publication, we look forward to it with pride and we render whatever service possible toward the satisfactory completion of "The Coahoman."

It is our hope that a copy of this publication will find its way into every Negro high school library in Mississippi. Incorporated into its pages is a message which brings hope to those who seek quality education. Students who want a college education and cannot attend one of the senior colleges because of a very limited amount of finance should investigate the educational program here at Coahoma Junior College.

The fact that its graduates have made enviable records in higher educational institutions and in their vocational careers testifies to the effectiveness of our program of education at a cost that you and your family can afford to pay.

It has been a source of refreshing satisfaction to work with you this school year. May each of you be blessed with the success and high purpose which you have so intently sought.

B. F. McLaurin, President

Principal's Message

You have performed a masterful task in preparing this publication. Through your diligence and competency, you have shown that you deserve to be numbered among the stars in the Coahoma galaxy.

It is grand to be listed in that group of stars which comprise our universe. For it removes you out of the realm of the commonplace and into the broad area of endless horizons where life can be viewed objectively and positively.

Just being among the stars enables one to surbordinate himself to something finer, greater, and more provocative. In so doing, he humbles himself; he loses himself in his venture; he is devoid of selfish motivations; he is propelled onward by an insatiable desire to discover the true meaning for his existence.

Out among the stars is the best place to gain the peace and serenity which man finds so elusive. And you, in your galaxy, do not seek it for yourself alone, but for mankind in general. It is here, in the realm of infiniteness, that you share the magic splendor and greatness of other things which bring about a close communion with all persons and a willingness to share the beauty and magnificence.

May you forever hold the distinction of being above the crowd and among the stars.

MR. and MISS SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL

James Long, "Mr. Senior," hails from Stovall, Mississippi. His dignity and leadership ability assisted him in winning the presidency of the Science Club and the Hi-Y. His athletic interests are in basketball and track.

As a future career, James plans to become associated with the noted mathematicians and scientists of tomorrow.

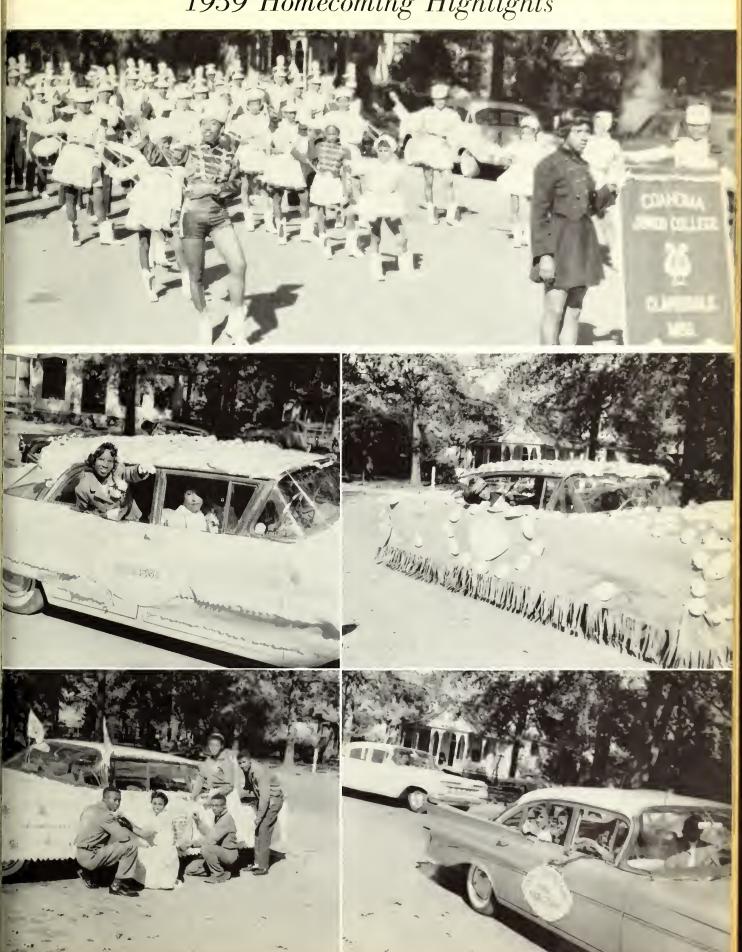

Miss Merle Collier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Collier of Tutwiler, Mississippi, stands 5'5" with all the graces desired in a "Miss Senior."

Miss Collier enjoys studying but finds time to be a member of the Band, the Student Council, Tri-Hi-Y, and N.H.A. Merle's future plans are to enter college and to major in dress designing.

Student Council President Martin congratulates Mr. and Miss Senior.
